Meet the Nafus Family

The impact of Habitat for Humanity homeownership on the Nafus family has been truly transformative. As a family of five, with Mom working at the local school and Dad as a truck driver, they were struggling to make ends meet, paying over 60% of their income each month for housing. When they received the news that they would become Habitat homeowners, the overwhelming excitement brought tears to their eyes.

What excites them the most is the opportunity to actively participate in every step of building their new home, giving them a sense of ownership and pride. This new home not only provides shelter but also brings a peace of mind and stability that was previously lacking. No longer will they have to worry about abrupt rent increases or property sales forcing them to move. Habitat for Humanity has not only provided them with a house but has also opened the door to a brighter, more secure future for the Nafus family.
